- Sample Question
  - Announcer: The sample question is based on the following announcement.
  - Speaker: Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen. This is Captain Jason Jong again. We will begin our descent into Hong Kong International Airport in about 15 minutes. Depending on the instructions from the air traffic controllers, we expect to be landing at about 3:00. Remain seated with your seat belt fastened. On behalf of all of us at Star Air, thank you for flying with us.

- 第 25 題與第 26 題（題組）
  - Speaker: In Chinese culture, many people think 19 is an unlucky age. I thought it was just a silly superstition, but I recently turned 19, and now I'm not so sure.
    On my birthday, I got the flu. I felt like I was dying, and so I missed out on a trip to Korea that I'd planned with two friends. Two weeks later, I lost my student ID card. It took days to get a new one, and life without it was really inconvenient.
    I've only been 19 for less than a month. I really can't wait to turn 20.

(請閱讀第 27 及 28 題試題)

---

- 第 27 題與第 28 題（題組）
  - Speaker: What's the best way to look after your skin when you're planning to spend time outside in the sun?
    First, on sunny days, make sure you cover all your exposed skin with sunscreen. And don't forget to check the manufacture or expiration date of your sunscreen. If it's too old, it won't work as well. Also, make sure you store your sunscreen in a cool, dry place when you're not using it.
    Second, make sure you apply sunscreen more than once a day. It doesn't last forever. Ideally, you should put it on every 2 to 3 hours. And if you go swimming, apply it more often, because it will wash off.
    Third, when you do get out of the sun, consider cooling your skin down with body lotion.

(請閱讀第 29 及 30 題試題)

- 第 29 題與第 30 題（題組）
  - Speaker: People who wake up at night to go to the bathroom may need to cut back on salt in their diet. In a study of more than 300 volunteers, researchers found that eating less salt helped people to sleep through the night.
    So how much salt is right for you? Adults in the UK are recommended to eat no more than 6 grams of salt a day. But children should eat less: only 2 grams of salt for ages 1 to 3, 5 grams for 7 to 10-year-olds, and up to 6 grams after age 11.
    If you think you need to reduce the amount of salt in your diet, then it might be a good idea to avoid foods like bacon, ham, cheese, and chips. These are all high in salt, with more than 1.5 grams of salt per 100 grams.

(播音員：請翻頁)
(請閱讀第 31 及 32 題試題)

---

- 第 31 題與第 32 題（題組）
  - Speaker: Ever look in the mirror and wish you were more fashionable? Tired of wearing the same old clothes, but don't have the money to spend on new items? Then you're going to have to use your imagination.
    Try changing it up, like choosing the opposite of your normal style. For starters, try wearing the wrong shoes, like putting on your sneakers instead of high heels, or sandals instead of sneakers. The more wrong it feels, the more right it could be. Or try wearing something small with something really big, like a baggy top with tight shorts, or loose pants with a fitted T-shirt. And to top it off, put on a hat. Fashion is all about making a statement, and nothing does that quite like a hat.

  - Staff: OK, hold on a moment. Let me get your event planning worksheet and see what’s going on.
  - Yi-Ching: Thanks.
  - Staff: Ah, I see. Your worksheet is incomplete, so we’re unable to process your application. You still need to check the event location. Where are you going to hold your event?

- 對話內容：
  - Man: Tina, could you give me a hand?
  - Tina: Sure, what do you need?
  - Man: We have to complete this paragraph writing structure form.
  - Tina: OK, what’s the problem?
  - Man: Um, what is a topic sentence?
  - Tina: It means the main idea of your paragraph. You know, the main point.
  - Man: OK. Then what are these supporting details for?
  - Tina: They are what you need to support your main idea.
  - Man: I got it.
  - Tina: So, what is your topic sentence?
  - Man: "My summer vacation."
  - Tina: But it has to be a sentence. You have to present an opinion or idea about your summer vacation in the form of a sentence.
  - Man: I see. Um, "My summer vacation was great."
  - Tina: All right. Now you need three supporting details.
  - Man: Like?
  - Tina: Like three reasons why your summer vacation was great.

- Tina: Sounds good. You need one more supporting detail.
- Man: "I didn't have any homework."
- Tina: OK, though I don't think it's a very original paragraph.
- Man: I don't care about that. Originality isn't one of my strong points anyway.
- Tina: That's OK. Just don't forget to add a concluding sentence at the end.
- Man: "I wish summer vacation lasted forever."

第 37 題至第 40 題（題組）

- 講稿內容：
  - Speaker: Thank you for watching Health for Teens.
    As you grow up, your mom often says, "Eat your fish, it's packed with nutrients." When it comes to getting the nutrients your body needs, vitamin D should not be overlooked. Today, I am going to talk about how to make sure you receive a proper amount of vitamin D.
    Vitamin D is known as the "sunshine vitamin." When exposed to the sun, your body manufactures it. You only need 15 minutes of sun three times a week for your body to make sufficient vitamin D.
    You can get vitamin D from other sources, such as fatty fish. A three-ounce serving of salmon contains about 450 International Units of vitamin D. Foods like egg yolks, mushrooms, liver, and red meat like beef are rich in vitamin D.
    For teenagers like you, the proper amount is 600 International Units. The intake of 600 International Units is for people ages 1 through 70, but for seniors above 70, 800 International Units is recommended.
    It's unusual to have too much vitamin D, but having too much of it causes thirst, vomiting, and kidney problems.
    If you find this information helpful, please give us a thumbs up, and don't forget to subscribe to our YouTube channel for more videos. Thank you!
